More than half the world lives in poverty. Christian Aid aims to put a stop to that. So we campaign against the structures and rules that keep people poor. And we work with local organisations to give people strength to find their own solutions to the problems they face, irrespective of their religion. If you're as determined as we are to end poverty and injustice across the world, work with us to make change happen. Christian Aid is seeking a Programme Officer to join our team based in Bolivia.

The programme officer will have a key role to support and manage Christian Aid partnerships and programmes as well as the effective disbursement of funds to Christian Aid partners working on the programme including recommending grants to partners. S/he will have to contribute to the development of Christian Aid policy and strategy in relation to Resilient Livelihoods and Inclusive Market Development as well as to promote communications and fundraising, including institutional donors.

In order to perform the role with the wider Christian Aid and with the partners in Bolivia you will need to demonstrate a good understanding of financial controls and procedures, as well as of issues of governance, indigenous issues, gender, power and rights based on a significant experience in international development. The role includes technical skills related to inclusive market access and market chain development for the partners working on this area. Additionally, understanding of advocacy, campaigning and lobbying is required as well as good verbal and written communication skills in English and Spanish.
