

NY: One-month residential research fellowship at NYU for faculty teaching in Puerto Rico

The Center for Latin American and Caribbean Studies at New York University welcomes applications to a residential research fellowship at NYU for July 2018 for faculty from Puerto Rico who have been affected by Hurricane Maria.

The fellowship includes:

Housing for the month of July 2018

$3000 Stipend to cover expenses and travel

NYU ID and Library privileges

Administrative support from the Center for Latin American and Caribbean Studies

Who is eligible?

Professors (faculty, artists, researchers) who work in Puerto Rico and are affiliated with a Puerto Rican college or university (as of September 2017)

Intended for those in the arts, humanities or social sciences

Complete the online application here.

(<http://as.nyu.edu/clacs/research/nyu-residential-research-fellowship.html>).

The application will ask for:

Description of your research project (2 pages). The project may be ongoing or new.

Statement of your professional trajectory in Puerto Rico, and what you hope to contribute to Puerto Rico (or its rebuilding) through your work (2 pages)

CV

Application Deadline: May 7, 2018

Notifications: May 21, 2018

Questions?

Contact Omar Dauhajre, Assistant Director, at clacs@nyu.edu