

The Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs at Princeton University has an occasional need for lecturers to teach or co-teach in areas such as International Relations, International Development, Domestic Policy, Global Health, Psychology and Public Policy and Economics and Public Policy for the 2019 - 2020 academic year.

An advanced degree or comparable experience required. Please provide a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a statement of teaching interest, and the contact information for one reference. No letters of recommendation will be required until the interview stage.

Due to the volume of applications, only candidates selected for an interview will be contacted. The applications will be reviewed starting on May 3, 2019, and will continue until positions are filled.
