

The Nohad A. Toulan School of Urban Studies and Planning at Portland State University is recruiting for a non-tenure track instructional faculty member (NTTF) in the area of Community Development (position # D91183). We seek candidates whose expertise complements the existing strengths of the faculty, especially interested in areas such as: migration and immigrant communities, Latinx communities, energy and climate justice, neighborhood change, Black/African-American studies, ethnic studies, big data and online communities, social movements, and urban history and sociology more broadly.

We seek a colleague who will enthusiastically contribute to strengthening our academic programs and interdisciplinary collaborations and whose work will effect positive social change. The successful candidate will be a dedicated, creative teacher-scholar able to foster success for our diverse student body. PSU is an urban-serving university with strong representation of veterans, first-generation college students, LGBTQ+ people, Pell Grant recipients, and adult learners among the student body.

The teaching load is approximately three courses per term in each of the three quarters of the academic year. Summer teaching opportunities may be available under a separate contract. This is a career position with pathways to promotion and continuous appointment. NTT faculty participate in university governance and have access to professional development funds and sabbatical leave, among other faculty support resources. Full-time faculty are represented by a collective bargaining chapter of the American Association of University Professors.

Applicants should have a Ph.D. in a relevant field such as community development, urban studies, urban planning, environmental studies, sociology, anthropology, geography, gender studies, ethnic studies. Candidates who hold a master's degree and have advanced to Ph.D. candidacy may be considered. Prior experience with university-level teaching is strongly preferred. Review of applications will begin immediately, and the position will remain open until filled. The appointment is scheduled to begin September 16, 2019. Inquiries can be directed to Ms. Nora Quirós, the Department Manager, at ngu...@pdx.edu.

Applications should be submitted at <https://jobs.hrc.pdx.edu/postings/29414> and include:

- Cover Letter
- CV
- Statement of Teaching Philosophy
- Summary of teaching evaluations or equivalent (3 pp. max)
- Diversity Statement: discussing experiences and impact related to diversity, equity, and inclusion
- Two course proposals: one-page summaries that include course description, learning outcomes, major readings and assignments - please choose one course currently required of undergraduate Community Development majors and a new elective you would offer in your specialization.
- Contact information for three referees who can address your experience and potential as an instructional faculty member (the system will request letters immediately)

Portland State University supports equal opportunity in admissions, education, employment, housing, and use of facilities by prohibiting discrimination in those areas based on age, color, disability, marital status, national origin, race, religion or creed, sex or gender, gender identity or gender expression, sexual orientation, veteran status, or any other basis in law. We encourage applications from a diverse range of candidates, especially those who excel at working cross-culturally or with diverse groups (on and off-campus). We recognize that diversity maximizes our potential for creativity, innovation, educational excellence and outstanding service to the community.
