Latin America and the Caribbean boast unparalleled natural resources, culture, and history, yet grapple with profound challenges, including biodiversity loss, extreme poverty, health inequalities, and the lack of urban planning.

Springer Nature will convene leading researchers, government representatives, private sector actors, and third-sector advocates to foster a rich and diverse discussion. Together, we aim to forge collaborations, share solutions, and attract international attention to the region's challenges and potential.

Day 1: Preserving Latin America's National Treasure: From Andres to Amazon and Caribbean

Day 2: Advancing Health and Wellbeing in Latin America: Uniting for a Resilient Future

Day 3: Reshaping Latin America: Building Sustainable Cities and Communities for a Thriving Future
