

Spotlight Cancún: Triple Crisis Blog series on climate negotiations

The GDAE-sponsored Triple Crisis Blog, in conjunction with the Real Climate Economics Blog, is running a series on the current global climate negotiations taking place in Cancún, Mexico. “Spotlight Cancún” features posts from leading analysts, including:

Miquel Muñoz: “The curtain rises on climate negotiations”

Kevin Gallagher and Frank Ackerman: “Making the economic case for tackling climate change”

Martin Khor: “Key issues in the Cancún climate negotiations”

Eban Goodstein: “Climate Realism”

Graciela Chichilnisky: “Negative Carbon and the Green Power Fund”

Nathan Russell, CGIAR: “Opening the door for agriculture at COP16”

... and many more. Check out the series Spotlight Cancún.

Also on Triple Crisis Blog:

Jeff Madrick: “Austerity Economics: Tax Cuts, Jobs, and Deficits”

C.P. Chandrasekhar: “Despite Financial Collapse, Neoliberalism Holds Sway”

Matias Vernengo: “Who Killed the Euro?”

Timothy A. Wise: “Are High Agricultural Prices Good or Bad for Poverty?”

Read more from GDAE’s Globalization and Sustainable Development Program.

Find us on Facebook 