

Implementing and Monitoring the New Urban Agenda

MOVING FROM WHAT TO HOW

Save the Date!

TUESDAY

6 February 2018

1.00 - 6.30 pm

Location TBD

KUALA LUMPUR, MALAYSIA

The Habitat III process created a consensus on what cities should aim to be. Among a long list of items, cities should be greener, more productive, provide equal opportunities for all, child-friendly, with reliable public transport and a place where no one is left behind. What remained unclear in this process, was how to get there. At this conference, mayors, academia, NGOs, and civil society representatives will discuss these issues, focusing on the three topics:

Local capacity to accomplish the “how”.

Do city authorities & governments have enough capacity to shape their futures? If not, what are the ways that cities are gaining that capacity - politically and economically?

Implementing the NUA in cities.

What urban policies and practices have worked and what were the conditions for success? Why, and what were the challenges they faced?

Monitoring the NUA and the role of local data.

How can monitoring efforts go beyond assessment exercises but also increase accountability, and feed back into policy debates and discussions at the local level? How can alternative and innovative types of data complement government statistics?
