

I am co-leading a SESYNC graduate pursuits project that was awarded funding recently. Our project is loosely geared at examining social responses to extreme weather events as noted in social media and traditional print media posts.

We are looking for one additional team member with experience/background in social responses to climate change. In particular, we are looking for a current PhD student that has or is about to pass their qualifying exams, has roughly 2+ years left in their PhD program and has experience with people's mental health/stress responses to climate change and/or large-scale, acute natural disasters.

Do you know anyone that might fit this bill and/or be interested? If so, I would be ever so grateful if you would pass along their contact information and/or connect us.

Many thanks!

Cheers,
Jeremiah Osborne-Gowey Jeremiah.Osbornegowey@Colorado.EDU
