Faculty Position: Assistant Professor (tenure track) in Social & Cultural Geographies

The Department of Geography at the National University of Singapore (NUS) is seeking to hire an Assistant Professor (Tenure Track) in social and cultural geographies, and would especially welcome candidates with expertise in tourism geographies.

More widely, research and teaching activities should complement and/or enhance existing activities of the Department, while maintaining a strong commitment to undergraduate education. For additional information, please consult the Department website: <http://www.fas.nus.edu.sg/geog/>

Although previous experience of researching in/on Asia is not essential, candidates must be able and willing to develop research projects in the region. We are open to a wide range of methodological and theoretical approaches. However, candidates must have a PhD in geography or an allied field (the PhD must be awarded prior to taking up the position). The successful candidate would be expected to start work at NUS from July 2020 or as soon as possible thereafter.

Interested candidates should submit an application comprising: a letter of interest with details of their research credentials and future plans; a full curriculum vitae; evidence of teaching experience, including feedback if available; and the names and contact details of three referees. Evaluation of applications will commence on 1st February 2020 and will continue until a suitable candidate is found. Shortlisted candidates will be notified soon thereafter and plans will then be made for a campus visit and interview.

A competitive remuneration package, including a period of subsidized housing and medical benefits and relocation expenses (where applicable), will be offered to the successful candidate.
