

Limited-Term (2-year) position at Dalhousie University

We are hiring a Limited-Term Instructor for a two-year term starting July 1, 2018. The instructor will possess the education and experience to teach broadly and supervise students in both the undergraduate community design and graduate planning programs. The instructor is expected to teach up to six courses a year. Teaching assignments will emphasize planning and community design curricula (e.g. urban design theory, landscape design and analysis, site planning, planning methods and studio courses). The instructor will also assist graduate and undergraduate students in their senior independent projects (graduate) and honours theses (undergraduate). The instructor may assist the School of Planning with the annual conference and scheduling end of term presentation events. The instructor will serve on short-term committees in the School of Planning, as needed and as appropriate for the time frame of the appointment.

Applicants must hold an advanced degree; one degree (graduate or undergraduate) must be in planning. A Ph.D. is preferred but not essential. The successful candidate will demonstrate evidence of successful teaching at a university-level, in material related to the duties to be assigned. Eligibility for membership in the Canadian Institute of Planners is desired; full membership is an asset. Practicing planners will also be considered for this position.

Warmly,
Ren

Dr. Ren Thomas
Assistant Professor
School of Planning, Dalhousie University www.renthomas.ca