

University
of Glasgow | Department of
Urban Studies

ISA RC43: Housing and the Built Environment

Housing Assets Housing People

Glasgow 1-4/09/09

University
of Glasgow

Department of Urban Studies

ISA RC43: Housing and the Built Environment

Housing Assets Housing People

Glasgow 1-4/09/09

RC43 of the International Sociological Association and the Department of Urban Studies at the University of Glasgow are pleased to invite participation in their international housing research conference to be held in Glasgow from 1-4 September 2009.

The conference theme is the turbulence in international housing credit and its human impacts on communities and inequalities at different spatial scales. Is housing just another globalised commodity or is it fundamentally local? The conference welcomes papers from all social sciences and from across the world for plenary, panel, doctoral and workshop sessions.

The conference venue is the historic Mitchell Library, and the event will include a full social programme and study trips that will bring delegates into direct contact with the city. Glasgow is an ideal laboratory to study housing and neighbourhood change. The Department of Urban Studies' focus on housing research has an international reputation for rigour and policy relevance.

Is housing just another globalised commodity or is it still fundamentally local?

First Call for Participation

Abstracts are welcome on theoretical, empirical and applied housing research from a sociological or social sciences perspective (i.e. geography, political science, public or social policy, economics, finance, management & business, planning, anthropology, real estate and behavioural science). Deadlines for abstract submission and registration (both in the Spring of 2009) will follow in future announcements.

Further Information

Professor Kenneth Gibb
Conference Chair

Head of Department of Urban Studies
University of Glasgow

T: +44 (0)141 330 6891

E: k.gibb@lbs.gla.ac.uk

www.glasgow.ac.uk/urbanstudies