

The Department of Geography at the University of Nevada Reno invites applications for graduate students (MS and PhD degree programs) with research and teaching assistantships available beginning in Fall 2020. The application deadline is February 1st, 2020. Applications can be submitted online here: <http://www.unr.edu/grad/admissions>

UNR Geography supports research in human and physical geography. We are especially seeking applications from individuals interested in studying human or human-environment geography. Faculty and students work in an interdisciplinary setting with colleagues in the department and scholars across campus. Please contact the most appropriate faculty member before submitting your application. Faculty and related topical and regional expertise are:

Kate Berry: water law and intergovernmental relations in water conflict, cultural politics of water, geographies of indigeneity, ethnicity and race (particularly interested in student applicants from Indigenous communities)

kberry@unr.edu

Jessie Clark: feminist political geography, security and development, experiences of statelessness, refugee resettlement, place-making, Middle East

jessieclark@unr.edu

Scott Kelley: transportation geography, energy geography, travel behavior, emerging technologies, spatial analysis, USA

scottkelley@unr.edu

Casey Lynch: urban geography, political economy, critical digital geographies, philosophy of science and technology, feminist and queer theory, US West, Latin America, Europe

caseylynch@unr.edu

Kerri Jean Ormerod: urban political ecology, water reuse, sanitation, water law, water governance, science and technology studies, Q Methodology, US West

kormerod@unr.edu

Paul White: historical geography, graphic representation, regional geography, industrial ecology, US West, Alaska

paulwhite@unr.edu

Casey R. Lynch, PhD

Assistant Professor

Department of Geography

University of Nevada, Reno

Pronouns: He/Him/His

Faculty Profile

ResearchGate

Twitter