

Join the Online Consultation on: Using Technology to Connect Citizens and Governments

We would like to invite you to be part of an effort to understand the role of technology in building trust between citizens and governments. Technology has significant potential for changing how citizens and governments communicate, and how citizens experience the state. However, technology when not accessible can also create exclusion and further sentiments of mistrust and unfairness. This consultation aims to shed light into how governments can embrace technology in a way that builds trust amongst citizens and increase effectiveness.

Please join us in this important online consultation: The Role of Technology in Building Citizen's Trust in Local Governments, from November 20 to December 17, 2019.

<https://www.globaldevhub.org/techcitizensgovernment>

Join the Consultation

The results of this online consultation will inform a document on Technology and Governance, that will be presented at the United Nations Development Programme Eleventh Ministerial Forum for Development in Latin America and the Caribbean to take place in 2020.

We look forward to your contributions and a very rich discussion online.

Regards

UNDP in Latin America and the Caribbean (RBLAC)

rblac.bulletin@undp.org

United Nations Development Programme (UNDP)

Copyright © 2019 América Latina Genera, Todos los derechos reservados.

Recibimos este correo electrónico porque estás suscrito a nuestra "Revista Genera Igualdad"

Nuestra dirección de correo es:

América Latina Genera

Centro Regional PNUD América Latina y Caribe.

Edificio 128. Ciudad del Saber

Ciudad de Panamá

Panamá