

Founded in 1898, Northeastern is a global research university and the recognized leader in experience-driven lifelong learning. Our world-renowned experiential approach empowers our students, faculty, alumni, and partners to create impact far beyond the confines of discipline, degree, and campus.

Our locations—in Boston; Charlotte, North Carolina; London; Portland, Maine; San Francisco; Seattle; Silicon Valley; Toronto; Vancouver; and the Massachusetts communities of Burlington and Nahant—are nodes in our growing global university system. Through this network, we expand opportunities for flexible, student-centered learning and collaborative, solutions-focused research.

Northeastern's comprehensive array of undergraduate and graduate programs—in a variety of on-campus and online formats—lead to degrees through the doctorate in nine colleges and schools. Among these, we offer more than 195 multi-discipline majors and degrees designed to prepare students for purposeful lives and careers.

About The Opportunity

The School of Architecture is located in the heart of Boston, a thriving urban center of culture and innovation with extensive global connections and intellectual networks. The School currently offers three undergraduate degrees: a Bachelor of Science in Architecture; a Bachelor of Science in Architectural Studies; and a Bachelor of Landscape Architecture. The School also offers two graduate degrees: a professionally accredited Master of Architecture; and a Master of Design for Sustainable Urban Environments. The School contributes curriculum to combined degrees at the undergraduate level such as Landscape Architecture and Environmental Science, Landscape Architecture and Environmental Engineering, and Architecture and Civil Engineering, and graduate programs in Sustainable Building Systems and Urban Planning and Policy.

The College of Arts, Media and Design (CAMD) is a collaborative community within the university that acts as a catalyst for research, inspiration, and discovery. It brings together a unique combination of disciplines, including Architecture, Art+Design, Communication Studies, Journalism, Media and Screen Studies, Music, and Theatre. CAMD is also home to the Center for the Arts as well as the newly launched Center for Design and the Center for Communication, Media Innovation, and Social Change. See: <http://www.northeastern.edu/camd>.

Responsibilities

The School of Architecture at Northeastern University announces an open-rank search for two professors in the area of Urban and Architectural Design. We seek candidates whose creative work, research, and teaching examine the design of the built environment, including the intersection of architecture, urban infrastructure, landscape design, and/or public space with issues of environmental and social sustainability and spatial justice. Courses taught will correspond with successful candidates' expertise, but desirable curricular dimensions include experience developing, coordinating, and leading design studios as well as design-based workshops, seminars, and/or lecture courses. The role of this new position in the School aims to bridge architectural design and urban design through advanced knowledge and experience in such areas as inclusive community engagement and participatory practice, infrastructural systems design, building and/or landscape design, fundamental architectural and urban design representation and skills building (drawing, modelling, mapping and urban analysis), and/or tools innovation for professional practice.

The appointment for this hire lies in the School of Architecture, but we welcome the possibility of affiliation and collaboration with other units at the College of Arts, Media, and Design (CAMD) or other colleges in allied disciplines such as urban planning, public policy, sciences, engineering, and beyond, depending on the candidate's interest and expertise. There is also potential to work with colleagues in other disciplines through Northeastern's growing network of research centers and labs, including but not limited to the Global Resilience Institute, the Coastal Sustainability Institute, the Burnes Center for Social Change and Innovation, the Institute on Race and Justice, the Dukakis Center for Urban and Regional Policy, and the Institute for Health Equity and Social Justice Research. Candidates should be committed to fostering diverse and inclusive environments as well as promoting experiential learning, both central to a Northeastern University education.

Qualifications

Successful candidates will have at minimum a master's degrees in Architecture or allied fields (e.g. M. Arch., MLA, MFA, or Master of Urban Planning) by the appointment start date.

Candidates should be design researchers as well as active practitioners or academics.
